"Nick has such a unique story with the Federal family," says Federal Ammunition's Vice President of Marketing Jason Nash. "Nick literally grew up in the shadows of the factory of Federal Ammunition in Anoka, MN. His family has a connection with Federal that goes back long before he was born and it's really cool to tie the historical circle back together with a sponsorship of his popular television show," says Nash. Hoffman details his relationship with Federal Ammunition, his path to country music stardom, and the influencers in his music career and hunting lifestyle show on the popular Outdoor Channel network.

In the Tech Talk segment, Federal has a long history of loading Premium bullets for hunters pursuing their dream animal, which could be that 6 ½ year-old buck that's been calling the 'back forty' home for years. Director of Product Development Jared Kutney weighs in on bullet construction and all the attributes that make Federal's new Terminal Ascent the go to bullet on the market today. Kutney gives his recommendations and an informative review on many popular bullets and the game they are best suited for that makes this segment a must listen to before seasons open this fall.
