“Remi Warren is what many of us aspire to be,” stated Brian Kelvington, Director, Media at Federal Ammunition. “He not only makes his living being an outdoorsman, but he is also completely immersed in it as he reports he spends around three-hundred days a year in the wide open spaces hunting and fishing,” said Kelvington. “It’s a feeling of adventure,” states Warren about his love of the lifestyle. “Every day is different whether I’m guiding or hunting on my own and it pushes your hunting skills.”

On this episode, Warren dives into fitness, trip preparation, as well as some cooking recommendations as he is a master in the kitchen. Before ending the conversation, Warren also gives some advice and recommends a unique tool to assist when judging a deer. A great conversation with some helpful hints on a variety of topics all outdoorsmen and women can use.
