“There are a lot of 22 Long Rifle loads to choose from, but due to the versatility of this little cartridge, new loads are always welcome. CCI is the leader in rimfire innovation, and their newest Clean Hyper Velocity load for the 22 Long Rifle caught our attention,” said Field & Stream Editor Richard Mann. “Though listed as a target load, a 31-grain lead bullet at more than 1500 feet-per-second is suitable for small game, especially when it will drill dime-size groups. I’ve headshot several squirrels with this load, some at around 50 yards. What sets it load apart is the polymer coating on the bullet that has an optimized geometry for better precision.”

New CCI Clean-22 Hyper Velocity's purple polymer bullet coating reduces lead fouling in the barrel without leaving residue. This also cuts lead buildup in suppressors 60 to 80 percent. It's round-nose bullet utilizes optimized bullet geometry for improved accuracy. This ultra high-velocity loading reliably functions in semi-automatic firearms. It's available in 50-count boxes; MSRP: $10.99.
