Federal Premium Freight Train Copper is an all-new lineup of sabot slugs. A streamlined copper projectile and exclusive sabot design combine to help print tight groups at 200 yards through rifled barrels. A polymer tip and aerodynamic nose profile maximize downrange velocity and energy, while the externally skived nose cavity provides a dramatic expansion.

"One of the key factors to the accuracy of the new Federal Premium Freight Train is its exclusive sabot design, which improves overall accuracy through rifled barrels," said Federal Shotshell Product Director Adam Moser. "The streamlined polypropylene tip in Federal Premium's new Freight Train copper sabot slug also advances performance in several ways, improving accuracy, expansion, and downrange energy."

The sabot aligns the slug within the bore and separates cleanly and consistently at the muzzle for peak accuracy. The deep, externally skived slug cavity provides consistent, aggressive expansion across a broad velocity range. The shotshells feature reliable primers and clean-burning propellant in 12- or 20-gauge options. They are packaged in 5-count boxes and meet lead-free ammunition requirements.

"The sleek exterior of the new Freight Train copper sabot slug contains several unique features that improve the bullet's ballistic coefficient, boost penetration, and enhance its ability to expand on impact," continued Moser. "The hollow point was also optimized so when the petals hinge back, they deliver a tight upset providing more penetration depth."
