Remington's 4th Annual Shoot to Cure Fundraiser Was a Tremendous Success

LONOKE, Ark. – October 13, 2025 – Remington Ammunition recently hosted its 4th Annual Shoot to Cure sporting clays fundraiser. The exciting event united the outdoor industry and local Arkansas businesses to support disease research and aid children in need. All proceeds went to benefit the Arkansas Children's Hospital. This year's event was a tremendous success, raising nearly $19,000 and bringing the event's four-year total over $50,000.

"Shoot to Cure is an event that reaches shooting enthusiasts and is a great avenue for shooters to show support for Arkansas Children's Hospital while exercising their skills and love for shooting at the same time," said Remington's Gun Club Director Kris Carson. "With the participation of corporate teams such as Healthway Pharmacy, United Health, First Electric, Garver Engineers, Windsor Door, Arkansas Game and Fish Foundation, and many more, it's truly a unique fundraiser and it's a win-win for everyone involved."

Hosted at Remington's historic Gun Club, which is located just steps from Big Green's ammunition factory, the club features facilities for trap, skeet, sporting clays, and five-stand. Whether it's a family outing, corporate event, or a sanctioned competition, Remington Gun Club allows visitors to put the world's finest shotshells to the ultimate test. The top shooter at the event was Tommy Browning with a 98, with Steve Powell and Mike Darr in a second-place tie with a score of 96."

The Shoot to Cure event also showcased Remington's Gun Club Cure line of target shotshell ammunition, which helps real families nationwide. A portion of the proceeds from the sale of this ammunition benefits children's hospitals and disease research. Meaning your day at the trap, skeet, or sporting course gives back to those in need. It's available in two 12-gauge loads, including Low Recoil.
